Treatments are sent at a distance either through mental projection, instrumental or by other means and, as with all the forms of healing, it is directed towards one goal - the restoration of harmony and balance.

Kate Quartermaine – Body Talk and communing with our body devas

Our bodies and organs have their own consciousness (body devas), just as all creation has. Everything we think, feel or do affects some aspect of us in some way. When we understand this, we can then develop a healthy relationship with our own body, able to hear what it might be trying to tell us, and giving it the consideration, love and respect that it deserves.

About Kate:

Kate has been working as a therapist in one way or another since the early nineties. A long-term dowser, she has trained in a variety of therapies. Nowadays she works as an intuitive healer and dowser, working with homeobotanical remedies, flower and vibrational essences, and other modalities.
